Planning Process Notes

Name	Date

Directions: This version of Process Notes is designed to help teachers plan their curriculum and to reflect on their teaching. It reminds teachers that there are things they and their students must do before to prepare; ot her things must be done during the learning, but they may not happen if we do not stop to ask what we should be doing. Finally, there is the question of how we follow up a lesson, activity, or book. If, for example, you say that after you must assess, you still have different options for assessment; this desgin tool asks you to stop and reflect on the different ways you could or even should assess their learning.
